L.), 2; BOSTON (N. L.), 6-AFTER-NOON CAME.

Between morning and alternoon there were big changes at the Polo Grounds yesterday. One change had to do with the playing of the New Yorks, the other with the conditions of the playing. The morning of the New Yorks and gray, and the playing of the New Yorks and gray and they lost was frosty and raw and yellow, and they lost was frosty and raw and yellow, and they lost was frosty and they have a second of 20,000 and they have a second to Boston. The afternoon was warm and bright and gay with the presence of 23,900 spectators, who saw the New Yorks play with such spirit and tone in the field that even the two forliors hits made by the locals could not keep them from a whitewash victory. The change of heart and change of form of the New Yorks between games was as the quick succession of ply of blue to the sombre cuite as complete as the quick succession of the celestial panophy of blue to the sombre pall of the forenoon.

Ordinarily a game so bereft of hitting as that of the afternoon is dull, but not so this one. The explanation is to be found in the neatness and despatch of the fielding. There was much outfield fly hitting, nearly all to centre and right fields and this unwonted condition gave opportunities to Browne, Van Haltren. Dexter and Carney, which that quartet of guardians of the outposts seized with alacrity. Browne surpassed himself, He darted over the pasture as blithely as a meadow lark, and he sought nothing that he did-soft devour. Nor were the wings of Dexter and Van Haltren to be clipped by difficult catches. Tenny's first base play was another ornate touch to the picture.

Both Mcdinnity and Willis were in superbiettle. From a strictly utilitarian standpoint their services were of more value than the dashing work of the fielders. The control and judgment of each pitcher was splendid. They were two expert artisans at their best, and so thorough and skilful was their pitching, so craftily did they play upon the weaknesses of the opposing batsmen that the keenness of their duel was to the appreciative ones a sufficient solace for want of hitting. They pitched with arms of steel and hearts of oak.

Willis pitched the better game of the two hits that the New Yorks made one was a pronounced scratch, and as Willis's luck was in an inverse ratio to the sturdiness of his endeavor, this measily scratch hit won the game for the New Yorks. The fact is, willis's pitching was a fine a performance one has ever come forth from the box at the Polo Grounds, and yet in the face of this to lose his game was about as rough a deal is his ever come forth from the box at the Polo Grounds, and yet in the face of this to lose his game was about as rough a deal from Fate as could be imagined.

It was Gilbert who made the scratch hit. Hilbert was the first New York batter in the third inning, and one of his random stabs for the bail resulted in a pop fly to right field. Dexter ran for the ball, and so did Carney, Dexter stopped to give Carney the catch, and Carney simultaneously was swayed by the same consideration. While they were salaming the ball dropped to the ground between them, and Gilbert raced to second base, while Capt. Tenney kave his two delinquent outfielders a withering look for this, their only blunder.

Still, there would have been no score if Greninger had not thrown the ball wide to first when handling Warner's grounder. McGinnity moved both baserunners up with a sacrifice. Browne hit to Willis, who, tall as he is, had to jump in the air for the ball. By the time he regained the earth and got straightened out for a throw to the plate Gilbert was just diving preparatory to a heading slide, and Willis's throw was a fraction of a second late. Van Haltren's line fly to Carney, brought Warner in.

There was no other time in the game when there was serious danger of scoring. The Bostons had two men on bases in the first insing, but after two were out. In four of the remaining eight innings they did not have anybody on base, and of these eight innings those who did reach base never had any company on the knolls. The New Yorker went to bat innings those who did reach base never had any company on the knolls. The New Yorks did not have a man on base in the last four innings. Twelve New Yorkers went to bat in the last four innings, showing the effectiveness of Willis. In fact, only one man reached first base after the scoring, and he on a base on balls. The only clean New York hit was made by Van Haltren in the first inning.

However, the New Yorks won the game, and on its merits. Two hits and two runs are wastly better than four hits and no runs, and it was the superior steadiness in backing up their pitcher that made victory possible.

NOON GAME.

The eighth and ninth unings at Washington Park yesterday afternoon were a sad blow to the pitchers, Jones and Evans of the Brooklyn teams. Up to the eighth inning Jones held the Philadelphia players pretty well in check, Brooklyn being in the lead, by 4 to 2. Jones, however, could not keep up the pace and besides giving a base on balls was hit for three singles, netting Philadelphia three runs and the lead. Manager Hanlon then put Evans in to pitch. He gave the first man to face him. Thomas, a free pass and made a muddle of Barry's hit. The Quakers then got in three singles, cinching the lead with four more runs. The visitors played an excellent game hitting the ball at critical stages, and fielding without an error. Fraser Basehall, Wiedenmayer's Park, Newark.

BROOKLYN, 4. PHILADELPHIA (N. L.), 3-MORN-ING GAME.

That Umpire Johnstone would stand for no arguments in the game between Brooklyn and Philadelphia at Washington Park yesterday morning was demonstrated in the first inning. Keister was the first to fall a victim to the official's strict discipline. With two out and Barry on first Keister hit the ball clear on the nose and it sailed far out into centre field. It was a homer, but Keister failed to touch second base in his wild chase around the bags. The ball was laced back to Ritter by Dobbs, the former throwing it to Strang, who touched second bag, and Umpire Johnstone declared Keister out but allowed the run-scored by Barry. This decision brought the whole Philadelphia team around the impire, but the latter waved them off Keister persisted in his argument, and was ordered out of the game. He still persisted and was finally ordered off the field. The home team won the game in the eighth inning after two were out.

AMERICAN LEAGUE GAMES. Double Victories All Along the Line and

New Yorks Suffer. Double victories were in order in the American League yesterday. One of the unfortunates to get a double defeat was the New York team, which thereby retrograded to seventh place. The Philadelphias beat the New Yorks in two hard-fought games, and the champions passed the Detroits, who lost twice to St. Louis. St. Louis also passed Detroit, as did the Bostons, who beat Washington twice. and the Clevelands, who beat Chicago twice. The Detroits, therefore, fell back four notches in one day. mile match race against C. G. Wridgway of New York. As all automobile records are made with a flying start, the times for intermediate miles are allowed, and, this being a sanctioned meet, with recognized timers. the record will undoubtedly be accepted by the American Automobile Association. The former record was 1 minute 214 seconds, made by Alex Winton at Detroit last fall. Oldfield's times for the five miles were: I minute 14 2-5 seconds, 2 minutes 16 seconds 3 minutes 21 seconds, 4 minutes 26 seconds,

A signal success was scored by the first meet of the season at the trotting track. Much better sport was seen than is usual at automobile races, the tendency being for the contestants to be too unevenly matched to make close finishes. The races yesterday indicated that the sport is getting nearer to the point of affording good exciting contests. About 6,000 persons were in attendance, and there was no doubt about their satisfaction with the card furnished.

The grounds were a spectacle such as has not been seen about New York before and has been approached only at the racetracks of the thoroughbreds. There were 219 automobiles on the ground by actual count. About thirty of them were stowed under the stand and therest composed a striking picture in one big group at the east end of the grand stand and stringing along in line in front of the stand from one end to the other. Only about half of the 6,000 present were in the stand.

motor cars. The tig and little machines were all a-flutter with the gay costumes of women.

In spite of the big crowd of "devils" present and the racing there was only one mishap of consequence. The steam runabout of W. I. Twombly had its gasolene catch fire and the upholstering was badly damaged before the flames were extinguished. This happened while the machine was standing on the grounds during the races.

Besides the new record made by Oldfield, new motor cycle records from one mile to five were made by Albert Champion. He went for a trial against the figures and succeeded in beating the 1 minute 63-5 seconds for a mile and 5 minutes 38 seconds for five miles, made by Fred Chase at London on May 22.

The feature of the card was to have been the Sve-mile match race in heats between Barney Oldfield and C. G. Wridgway, but Oldfield won too handily. In the first heat Oldfield's machine did not spark well. Wridgway got under way first and led by 100 yards at the end of the first mile. Then Oldfield got going, overtook him and, gaining slowly, won by an eighth of a mile. In the second heat Oldfield's car worked better, and though Wridgway got away first the Toledo man caucht him and, passing, gave him a good beating.

He won by a mile and a quarter. here are talking to-day over the clever way in which Weedon, Fitzgerald's manager, forced Al Herford to split the purse for last night's fight. It seems arrangements were made to fig tateatch weig is, it ough nothing was settled about a division of the money. Gans weighed at least 140 pounds. After nearly half an hour's wrangle it was decided to split the purse evenly, as Weedon refused to let Fitzgerald go on unless this equal division of the money was made. The total gate receipts were $7.633.

Al Herford was a nice winner when Referee Graney counted Fitzgerald out. He bet $1,400 at even money that Gans would win inside of fifteen rounds, and he bet the rest on the result, getting an average of 10 to 4½. It was the biggest bet that Herford has had on Gans in a long time.

Jimmy Britt, who watched the fight closely last night, says he is still confident he can whin Gans. He says Gans cannot reach him as he did Fitzgerald and in return Britt believes he can land punishing lefts on the negro's wind that will knock him out.

The playing was spirited throughout and there was plenty of rough work. In a serimmage during the first period, Henry W. Mr. Bull retired from the game, his place being taken by Reginald Brooks.

Meadow Brook received a goal by handicap. It was a see-saw game from the start.

BARNEY OLDFIELD GOES A MILE

The one-mile American track record for automobiles came east yesterday, after having dwelt for two years in the West, and now resides in New York city. The new record is 1 minute 13-5 seconds, and was established at the Empire City track by Barney Oldfield of Toledo during the race meet there in the

He won by a mile and a quarter. It was in the second mile of this heat that Oldfield established the new record. Joseph Tracy of this city was the star performer in the competitions, winning the three-mile and five-mile events and making a new record for cars of the middle-weight class in the three-mile event.

In the three-mile race the real struggle was between A. C. Bostwick and F. A. La Roche for second place. At the end of the first mile La Roche crowded Bostwick in toward the fence so far that the coat of D. D. Murphy, Mr. Bostwick's mechanic, who was hanging out over the inside, was caught on the fence and torn from him. Murphy got a shock but was not hurt. Mr. Bostwick protested La Roche for foulling, but, as Bostwick protested La Roche for foulling, but, as Bostwick protested La Roche for foulling, but, as Bostwick protested for a time like a runaway for Dr. Neiden, but Gould pressed him closer and closer and finally nipped him at the tape.

In the five-nule race there was a fine duel bewteen Tracy and Peele. Tracy took the lead at the start, but Poole passed him in the backstretch and held the lead until the third mile, when Tracey forged to the front again and won by 100 vards.

The track was scraped and rolled for the occasion and the big cars managed to hug the rail very closely.

In the motor bicycle race there were ten starters, but G. W. Curtiss of Williamsbridge, introduced a novelty in the form of a bicycle having a two cylinder motor that he built himself and he spread eagled the field.
